

Place-Making: creating places where amazing experiences happen!

After overwhelming success in every province across the country, we are thrilled to announce the return of the highly acclaimed Place-Making workshop with Martin Liberio, presented exclusively by the QAPPD. Back by popular demand, this workshop has touched the lives of daycare educators across Canada.

Early childhood environments condition how we feel, think, and behave; and dramatically affect the quality of our lives. The environment either works for us or against us as we go about our daily lives. Visual environments that are dull and sterile, random and chaotic, or that contain busy murals and visual images that appeal to adults, have negative effects on attachment needs and on the healthy development of children's identity.

Character and aesthetic appeal have too often given way to an environment designed to offer images that adults associate with young children or that of cartoon characters, with bright primary colors; it should not have to be that way.

Place-Making involves ways of using environments creatively, imaginatively and with care, in order that children's play experiences may be enriching and meaningful.

This workshop is not just about learning; it's about transformation.

Designed for any new staff member or a seasoned professional seeking a reminder of best practices, this workshop is your gateway to success when it comes understanding room arrangement in early childhood settings.

Explore the latest trends and research in early childhood education.

Network with fellow educators and professionals. Gain practical strategies to enhance your teaching skills.

Don't let this opportunity pass you by! Don't miss this incredible opportunity to enhance your early childhood education skills and make a lasting impact on young minds. Join us for a day of learning, inspiration, and community!

Seats are limited, so secure your spot for October 13th today!